Dear Mr. Cunningham:

We have received from International Information Incorporated a proposal (P-6060, dated December 8, 1966) to render abstracting and computer services to our firm in connection with a legal information storage and retrieval system.

We understand that Systems Science Corporation has participated in the formulation of this proposal and is generally familiar with its terms and conditions. Thus, under the arrangement proposed, Systems Science Corporation would provide through its subsidiary, Telecomputations, Inc., certain computer equipment and programming services needed to operate the system.

However, we would like to call your particular attention to the provisions of Appendices B and C of the proposal which relate to security and confidentiality precautions and to certain business practice restrictions. These provisions in the proposal, should it be accepted by us, would become permanent obligations of Systems Science Corporation and its subsidiaries as well as permanent obligations of International Information Incorporated.

In other words, it is our understanding that in consideration for our agreeing to undertake this project and in consideration for our making the payments called for by the financial terms of the proposal, part of which payments will be remitted to you by International Information Incorporated in accordance with your agreement with

We will then continue to consider the acceptance of the proposal on this basis.

Sincerely yours,
